5. IFM as Key Element of Fire Management Policies

Details of each subtopics can be found on the conference website: https://www.ibama.gov.br/wildfire2019-theme

- Abstracts can be presented in the following languages: Portuguese, English and Spanish.

- All authors names should be displayed. In addition to the names, the institution and e-mail of each author must be also informed.

- After submitting the abstract, it will not be allowed to add, delete and/or replace authors.

- The content of the abstract should include: introduction / context (indicating the social and environmental background of the área, justifying the reason why to fulfill the described experiment); objective (what was intended to be achieved with this experience); methodology / how the action was performed (description of the activities performed); results and/or benefits achieved by the action; conclusions (observations on the impact of the performed action or next necessary actions identified through this experience).

- The abstract should be presented with a maximum of 350 words, excluding the title, authors name and keywords.

- The title must be clear and objective, containing no more than 30 words (the same title will be used in the final program of the Conference).

- Keywords: a maximum of 6 (six) keywords should be inserted at the end of the abstract to indicate the subjects covered in the text.

- Times New Roman 12 should be used as the default for the text formatting. This prevents special characters from being corrupted when uploading your file into the online abstract system.

- Abstracts will be accepted only within the period of submission, which will be from 03/11/2019 until 04/26/2019. After this date, even if the system is still open to receive abstracts, they will be disconsider. It wont be accepted abstracts submitted in a different model, sent by email or by any other forms of correspondence.

- The 7th International Wildland Fire Conference – WildFire2019 -abstract book will be published in a special edition of the magazine Brazilian Biodiversity (BioBrasil), published by the Chico Mendes Institute – ICMBio. This magazine has already published two special editions about the Integrated Fire Management and is dedicated to disseminate knowledge that contributes to the management of protected areas, endangered species, traditional populations and over all the conservation of socio-biodiversity.

- The abstracts will be submitted to the BioBrasil system, just like the articles of the others special editions. The submitted abstracts will be evaluated by researchers, environmental managers and practitioners in wildland Fire Management, to be defined by the editorial committee of the Conference, according to the theme selected by the author. Abstracts will only be published if at least one of the authors is registered in the conference.

- You must set up a login and a password to submit the abstract. The login must be exactly the same number (CPF for Brazilians or passport number for foreigners) used when registering for the event. This step is very importante, and must be strictly followed, so that way your abstract can be validated by your application to the Conference.

- The communication between the authors, the reviewers and the editorial committee of the conference will be exclusively through the magazine's system. Personal emails will not be considered. Please note that the magazine email may eventually be directed to your spam box, so check this box regularly and register the e-mail of the magazine (biodiversidade.brasileira@icmbio.gov.br) in your e-mail provider to prevent it to be considered as spam.

- During the evaluation process, the reviwers may request the authors to make corrections in the received texts. A deadline will be set for this corrections to be made. If the authors do not make the changes within the defined time limit, or if they do not explain the reason why the changes were not made, the abstract will be disconsidered.

- For technical questions related to the submission system, contact the team of the Brazilian Biodiversity magazine (BioBrasil) by e-mail fernanda.oliveto@icmbio.gov.br

- For questions related to the content and presentation of the abstracts, contact the Wildfire 2019 Editorial Committee at wildfire2019br@gmail.com, placing as subject "abstract submission".
